FOREWORD

It is my pleasure to present to the scholars on behalf of the Asiatic Society, Calcutta, the Bibliography of Indological Studies 1956, edited and compiled by Shri Sibadas Chaudhuri, our Librarian.

Shri Chaudhuri has already to his credit three volumes of similar bibliographies for the years 1953, 1954 and 1955, which have earned encomiums in India and abroad. I sincerely hope that the present volume will also be of use to scholars in Indology.

25. Some Buddhist antiquities and monuments of Rajasthan. IHQ, XXXII (2 & 3), 170-78.

26. Some interesting sculptures of the Jaina Goddess Ambikā from Marwar. IHQ, XXXII(4), 434-438.

[A Jodhpur:

2. Jaina temple at Sādaḍi (near Rāṇakpur) contains brass image of Ādi-Nātha. It bears an inscription of the 10th century on its back. It is a figure of Ṛsabhaṇātha. On his left, seated on a lotus in lalitāsana, is Ambika with a arms, supporting a child with the left and holding as āmrachumbi in the right. The figure of Yakṣa on the right of Jina is broken. The yakṣinī of the first Jina is well known as Cakreśvarī.

3. This piece appears to have been worked out in the early-medieval period and depicts Ambikā seated on the inverted lotus in the lalitāsana pose. Below the lotus-throne has been carved a couchant lion, its face being carved near the right leg of the goddess.

4. Sardar Museum at Jodhpur contains an uninscribed Jaina bronze brought from Sanchore (ancient Satyapura, situated in the Jalor district and on the borders of Gujrat). It depicts the central figure of the Tīrthankara flanked by the standing Tirthankaras on both the sides in a traditional manner. To the right and left of the latter can be seen the Chowrie-bearers on both the sides. Just below the standing Tīrthankaras are visible two seated figures, i.e., a yakṣa to the right hand side and Ambikā to the left. Folds of the dhotis of the aforesaid sthānaka tīrthankaras are peculiar, Prepared somewhere in the early mediaeval period. Other details regarding the depiction of the animals, throne and the heads of the 9 planets (navagrahas) are interesting.

B. Sirobī District.

In 1921 Muni Kalyāna Vijayali brought to light, some early Jaina branzes, in the Jaina temple at Piṇḍawāḍā near Vasantagarh (Sirohi district). This lot includes an interesting piece of the 7th century A.D. Besides this, a big bronze of Pārśvanātha, from the same area, depicts the yakṣa Sarvānubhūti seated on an elephant to the left.

Date—c. 700-25 A.D.[1]

Then the author gives a table of a few representative inscriptions ranging over fifty years from 1000 A.D. to indicate the frequent references to Velan and the Muvendavelan, the varied positions they had occupied in the administrative set-up of the times and the numerous generous donations for which they got mentioned in these records.]

164. Kalahandi plates of Anantavarman Vajrahasta, Gaṅga Year, 383. EI. XXXI (7). 317-322.

[This set of three copper plates belongs to the Maharaja of Kalahandi in Orissa. Found in a village called Chipurupalli about sixteen miles to the east of Parlakimedi in the Ganjam District of Orissa.
Characters belong to the Kalinga alphabet of about the 9th century A.D.
Language of the inscription is corrupt Sanskrit, composed in prose. Object of the inscription is to record a grant of some land to a Brāhmaṇa called Nārāyaṇa Jadyālākshētra, son of Nārāyaṇa probably belonging to the village of Mahāvagrāma. Donor was Anantavarman Vajrahasta, son of Bhūpēndravarman of the Eastern Gaṅga dynasty. Charter is dated in the year 383 of the reign of the Gaṅga dynasty.

Date would fall in the period 877-81 A.D.
No other inscription of Anantavarman Vajrahasta, the donor of the present grant, has come to light as yet, nor is his name mentioned in any other grants known so far.]

Jikana (or Jikana).
Earliest writer to cite his name is Bhavadeva. Hence, the lower limit of Jikana's date, like that of Bālaka, is 1100 A.D.

Yogloka (or, Yoklauka or Jogloka).
Jimutavahana is the earliest author to cite Yogloka. The lower terminus of Yogloka's date can be fixed at the 11th century although we can reasonably assume that this author flourished at least a century earlier than Jīmūtavāhana.

[In March 1938 a number of inscriptions in Brāhmi characters were discovered at Bāndhogarh (former Rewa State, in Vindhya Pradesh).

With the exception of Nos. XIV, XVIII and XIX which refer to Śivamagha and Vaiśravaṇa and are written in Sanskrit, the language of the remaining inscriptions is Prakrit.

The main group of the inscriptions speaks of three generations of kings; Mahārāja Vāsiṭhīputa Siri-Bhīmasena (year 51), his son Mahārāja Koohhiputa Poṭhasiri (years 86 to 88) and his son (?) Mahārāja Kosikiputa Bhaṭṭadeva (year 90). Of these rulers, so far only the name of Mahārāja Bhīmasena was known from the painted inscription of the year 52 on the Ginja hill in the Rewah State.

456. Some important literary colophons and their bearings on the history and chronology of Mithila (c.1097-1324 A.D.). JIH. XXXIV. 321-27.

[Nānyadeva:
The colophon of a commentary on Bharata's Nātyaśāstra, written by Nānyadeva, refers to the author as Śrī Mahāsāmantādhipati Dharmāvalok Śrīmān Nānyapati. In the body of the commentary, Nānya refers to himself as— Mithileśvara, Karṇāt Kūlbhuṣaṇ, Dharmādhārbhūpati, Rājnārain. Nṛpmalla etc.
Gaṅgadeva:
Colophon of Rāmāyaṇa manuscript, found in Nepal, reads as follows: "Saṃvat 1076 Āṣādh Vadi 4 Mahārājādhirāj Punyāvalok Som Vaṃsodhava Gauḍ-dhvaja Śrī-mad Gāṅgeyādeva bhujyamān Tirbhuktau Kalyān Vijayrājye Nepāl desiya Śrī bhaṇkṣu śālika Śrī Ānandasya Pātakāvasthit (kāystha) Paṇḍit Śrī Śrī Srikurasyātmaj Śrī Gopatinā Lekhidan." In another copy of the same ms. in place of 'Gauḍ-dhvaja', there occurs Garuḍa-dhvaja' and 'Kṛte' after 'Śrī Ānandāsya'. This Colophon, supplemented by other sources and local traditions, confirms that this Gāṅgeyadeva belonged to the Karṇātā dynasty of Mithilā.
Rāmsinghdeva:
Rām Siṇghdeva succeeded Gāṅgeyadeva. The Colophon of the manuscript "Suddhikalpataru" reads—"Saṃvat 1446-Samay Pauṣa Sudi 14 Śanou Śrīmannārayāṇpur Nṛpnārāyaṇetyādi——daratṅatrāji vibhṛājmān mahāṛpati Śrīmadṛām-singhdeva bhujyamānyā", etc. Another manuscript of the Nepāl Darbār catalogue refers to Rāma Siṇghadeva.]

The rest are tabulated in Vols. II and III which are still in typescript. Vol. IV is also in preparation.

A very brief summary of the documents on Indian history is appended.

The collection includes lengthy memoranda and minutes by Campbell and others, deals in considerable detail the civil and military affairs of Madras and covers such subjects as relations with the French, the Dutch and the Indian princes, finance, trade, army appointments and topography. and is arranged mainly in chronological order.]

592. Kurud* Plates of Narendra, Year 24. EI. XXXI (1). 263-266.

[At present preserved in the Mahant Ghasidas Memorial Museum at Raipur.

The characters are of the box-headed variety of the Central Indian alphabet, assignable to the fifth century A.D. and commonly noticed in the copper-plate grants of the Śarbhapura kings, and resemble closely those of the Pipardula plates. The language is Sanskrit.

The charter was issued by king Narēndra from his camp of victory at Tilakēśvara on the 4th day of Vaisakha in the the 24th year of his reign.

It is addressed to the residents of the village of Kēśavaka, situated in the Chullāḍasīma bhōga (or in the bhōga bordering on Chullāḍa) and states that the village was granted by the deceased king to one Bhaśrutasvāmin or Bhāśrutasvāmin belonging to the Dhāraṇi gōtra, and was registered by a charter which was burnt in the course of a conflagration in the donee's house. King Narēndra confirmed the grant to Śaṅkhasvāmin, son of Bhāśrutasvāmin, by means of a charter incised on copper plates together with all the rights. The dūtaka of the grant was the secretariat itself. The record was engraved by one Śrī Datta of Datta.]

[Found in the course of excavations under the auspices of the University of Saugar, at Sirpur in the Raipur District of Madhya Pradesh. The inscription consists of 14 lines of writing. The characters are early Nagari current in the 7th or 8th century A.D.

It is in Sanskrit verse throughout except the concluding sentence (line 14).

It opens with a stanza in praise of the lotus-feet of the Sugata. The next few verses record the construction of a monastery (vihāra) by a Bhikshu (Ānandaprabha) during the reign of Bālārjuna, as well as of the establishment of a Sattra (feeding house) for the monks residing in the monastery, for the upkeep of which a white-rice field was given. The eulogy (praśasti) was composed by Sumaṅgala, son of Tāradatta. It was incised by one Prabhākara.]

* Kurud, about 27 miles north-east of Raipur, in the Tahsil and District of Raipur in Madhya Pradesh.

1 Mōṭā Māchīālā, a small village about 7 miles to the north-east of Amreli. Bombay State.

[Characters: Southern class of alphabet.

A. Grant of Dhruvasēna I, Year 206: Issued from Valabhī by the Maitraka king Dhruvasēna I, purports to record the grant of a piece of cultivated land (sītā) known as Thunṭakakōlika in the eastern part of the village of Suvarṇakīya (or, less probably Kasuvarṇakīya) included in Śinabaraṭakasthalī.

Gift was made to the brāhmāṇas—Gangasarman, Gaṅgadēva and Chunuka—of the Śāṇḍilya gōtra, who were students of the Vājasanēya School of the Śukla-Yajurvēda.

Dūtaka who executed this grant was Pratīhāra Mammaka and the scribe was Kikkaka.

B. Grant of Dharasēna II, Year 252.

It was issued from Valabhī by Dharasēna I. Written by Skandabhaṭa and the executor of the grant was Chchibbira.

Charter purports to record the gift of the following plots of land and irrigation wells to a Brāhmaṇa named Rudra (a student of the Maitrāyaṇīya-Vārāhaka śākhā of the Yajurvēda and belonged to the Lāmakāyana gōtra):

(a) a piece of land on the northern border of the village Bhattivata, as also a step-well on the Eastern border of the same village

(b) a step-well in the Southern border of Śavinipadraka

(c) a plot of tilled land known as Pēraka in the northern border of the village of Bahudhanaka as also a piece of land in the western border of Bhabbāla-Paṭaka.]

695. A critical survey of the publications on the periphrastic future in Sanskrit. Lingua. VI (2). 1956. 158-179.

[In describing the periphrastic future in Sanskrit authors have too often understimated its nominal character. In post-Vedic literature this category in the main retained its ancient function of emphasizing that an occurrence is sure to take place. The idea of accomplishment was at least originally given prominence, the use of these forms being, at least in the beginning, due to the tendency to anticipate (fait-accompli). The difference between the constructions with the agent nouns in the Vedic—saṃhitās and the incipient periphrastic expression of futurity in the brāhmaṇas has often been exaggerated, as has the dissimilarity of the latter and classical usage. The present author is not convinced that the periphrastic future has arisen exclusively from the oxytone-tar-forms. A number of minor questions are critically discussed.]

696. On nominatives joining or 'replacing' vocatives. Lingua. VI (1). 1956. 89-104.

[The construction may probably be explained by the tendency to avoid 'Ubercharakterisierung', the nominative often replacing—other forms of a noun. With regard to the grammatical form of an attribute of a vocative there does not seem to have been a generally accepted idiom in prehistoric times. Scholars are however too often inclined to pose questions of this character in terms of chronology. The views upheld in connection with construction such are open to criticism. It may also be doubted whether a proper name added to verbs of calling etc. originally was in the vocative. Finally some remarks are made on the 'nominative instead of a vocative.']

[In August 1953 a hoard of 28 silver coins was found as treasure trove in village Jurkhanpur hamlet of Aria Bazar, Police Station Tanda, District Faizabad, U.P. The coins comprised issues of the Mughal Emperors: Jahangir (1), Shah Jahan (3), Aurangzeb (10), Shah Alam Bahadur I (4), Jahandar Shah (1), Farrukhsiyar (8) and Muhammad Shah (1). Of these a silver rupee of Farrukhsiyar offers a new type and has, therefore, been acquired for the Coin Cabinet of the State Museum, Lucknow, wherein it is now preserved.

Legend. (in translation).

"Struck coin on silver and gold by Grace of the Truth."

"Monarch of sea and land, Farrukhsiyar."

The specimen offers a new type in the silver coins of the king issued from Ilahābād mint and remains so far unrepresented in any of the coin cabinets.]

Viz: (1) Earliest of them are a few cast coppers.

(2) A gold coin of the Gupta Emperor Kumāragupta I (A.D. 413-55).

(3) Gold coin of Narasiṃhagupta has a usual archer type and measures ¾″ in diameter.

(4) An obverse mould piece of a king named Jaya; motif on the obverse is the same as on Narasiṃhagupta's coin, viz., king standing with bow and arrow.

(5) A gold coin of Śaśānka, king of Gauḍa.

(6) Three Śrī-Pratāpa type of Kāśmīrian coins, assigned to Lalitāditya, the Karkoṭa king of Kāśmīra;

(7) Other "mediaeval Hindu Coins" consist of a silver coin of Pratihāra Bhoja I, a hoard of 86 silver coins of Śrī-Vigra type and a gold coin of Govindacandradeva of the Gahaḍavāla dynasty.

(8) A couple of Muslim coins; inscription on the obverse of these coins is Abdul Fateh.

The coins recovered from the Nālandā University cover a period ranging from the end of the Gupta to the establishment of Muslim rule in India.]

Characters are early Brāhmī. Language: Māgadha dialect.]

1618. Inscriptions of the time of Yajvapala Gopala. EI. XXXI(7). 1956. 323-336.

[Stone inscriptions of the Yajvapāla or Jajapēlla king Āsalla (or Āsala), his son Gōpāla and grandson Gaṇapati, all of whom had their headquarters at the hillfort of Nalapura (modern Narwar, Shivapuri District, Madhya Pradesh).

Inscriptions of the reign of king Gōpāla in the said area, one at Sesai and fifteen at Baṅglā, were found on stone pillars commemorating warriors killed in fighting.

Characters are Nāgarī;

Language is corrupt Sanskrit.

(a) Inscription from Sesai, V.S. 1341 (= 1284 A.D.).

Sesai is a village about nine miles from Shivapuri.

The object of the record has been stated that Rāo Malayadēva of the family called Daṃgrōt was judhita (i.e. yuddhita in the sense of dead as the result of fighting in a battle) in connection with a case of cattle-lifting at the patōlī (i.e. a street or ward) of Sesaigrāma. It is further stated that his elder wife named Māhinide (i.e. Māhinidēvī) and younger wife named Nāvuladē (i.e. Nāvuladēvī) also became judhita.

The memorial pillar bearing the inscription under study was caused to be made by Rāo Hirmāṇa and Rāo Haṃsarāja who were respectively the elder and younger sons of Malayadēva.

(b) Inscriptions from Baṅgalā V.S. 1338 or 1337 (= 1280-81 A.D.).*

Inscriptions refer to the death of certain warriors who lost their lives fighting on behalf of the Yajvapāla (Jajapēlla) king Gōpāla against the Chandēlla monarch Vīravarman (c. 1261 and 1286 A.D.).]

[Pāṇḍukēśvar is 54 miles North-east of Śrīnagar, in the Garhwal District, Kumaun division, Uttar Pradesh.

I. Plate of Lalitaśūradēva, Year 22.

Characters belong to the Northern Class of alphabets of about ninth century; Language is Sanskrit.

Charter which records the grant of some land was issued from the city of Kārttikēyapura by Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Paramēśvara Lalitaśūradēva.

The executor of the grant was Mahādānākshapaṭal-ādhikṛita Pīūka.

The record was engraved by Gaṅgabhadra from the draft of the original prepared by Āryaṭa who was in charge of (ṃahāsandhivigrah-ākshapaṭal-ādhikṛita).

II. Plate of Padmaṭadēva, Year 25.

Language of the inscription is Sanskrit.

The date of the charter is given as a day (possibly the 3rd) of the dark half of Māgha in the 25th regnal year of king Padmaṭadēva who ruled about the first half of the tenth century A.D. Line 21 refers to the uttarāyaṇa-saṅkrānti as the occasion of the grant.

The charter was issued from the city of Kārtikēyapura by Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Paramēśvara Padmaṭadēva who was the son of P.M.P. Dēsaṭadēva and Mahadevi Padmalladevi, the grandson of P.M.P. Ichchhatadeva and Mahādēvī Siṅghūdēvī, and the great grandson of Salōṇāditya and Mahādēvī Siṅghūvalidēvī.

The executor of the grant was the officer in charge of the Department of Gift, whose name seems to be Bhaṭṭa Dhansara. The charter was written by Nārāyaṇadatta, who was the officer in charge of the Department of War and Peace, and was engraved by Nandabhadra.

III. Plate of Subhiksharājadēva, Regnal Year (c. 2nd quarter of the tenth century).

Language of the record is Sanskrit.

The charter was issued from the city of Subhikshapura by king Subhiksharājadēva.

The inscription records the grant of many pieces of land.

All these lands including two pallikās were dedicated by the king in favour of the three gods, viz., Durgādēvī, Nārāyaṇa and Brahmēśvara.

The executor of the grant was the officer in charge of the Department of Gift, Kamalaśīla(?). The charter was written by Īśvaradatta, officer in charge of the Department of War and Peace, and was engraved by Nandabhadra.]

1627. Two Grants from Galavalli*. EI. XXXI(4-5). 1955. 187-196 pl.

[Mr. Ramesan presented the inscriptions to the Andhra Historical Research Society, Rajahmundry.

1—Plates of Gaṅga Year 393. [889-91 A.D.]

Language of the record is Sanskrit.

The issuer of the charter is the son of Mahārājādhirāja Paramēśvara Paramabhaṭṭāraka Śrīmad Dēvēndravarmadēva.

The object of the record (lines 14 ff) was the grant of three villages, viz., Numkapāṭakagrāma and Baḍavadā-grāma, both situated in the Galēla-vishaya, and Chintacheḍugrāma in Hōmva-vishaya. The grant was made in favour of Kaunḍuka-Gunḍēśvara. The gift was received on behalf of the deity by Sāmavēda-bhagavanta who was the son of Brahmātma-bhagavanta of Vallakōnda (or, Challakōnda). The document is stated to have been written by Chīḍapa who was the son of Kāyastha Khanḍyama called a Rahasya.

2.—Grant of Rājarāja I (Dēvēndravarman Śaka 998).

Language is Sanskrit.

Date of the charter appears to be March 23, 1077 A.D.

The inscription begins with the Siddham symbol, described Vajrahasta I (896-940 A.D.), son of Gunnamahārṇava (Guṇārṇava)—mahārāja (c. 879-896 A.D.) who belonged to the family of the Gaṅga lords of Trikaliṅga, belonging to the Ātrēya gōtra.

The charter was issued from Kaliṅganagara by Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Trikaliṅgādhipati Dēvēndravarman Rājarājadēva who was a worshipper of Mahēśvara (Śiva). Its object was to grant the village of Kōḍila in the Varāhavarttanī vishaya, in favour of three hundred Brāhmaṇas belonging to the Ātrēya gōtra.

The village granted by this charter was Bṛihat-Kōḍilagrāma in Varāhavarttanī, to which was added another locality called Bhinālavāṭaka. The gift land is stated in this case to have been made a grāma-grāsa which divided into six parts, four of them being granted to Vāsudēvaśarman of Vātsagōtra, who was a resident of Kalipura, and the remaining two parts to Nārāyaṇaśarman of the Kāśyapa gōtra.]

1678. Legacy of the British Rule in India. Jour. Indian Hist. XXXIV(3). 1956. 231-239.

[The British first acquired political power in India in 1765. In their first half century in India, the British were only one of the several political powers but after the disappearance of the Peshwa's authority in 1818, England became an imperial power in India and exercised paramount authority in the country.

The first and the foremost legacy of the British is India's unity. The British extended the same system of administration to the entire British India. In the twentieth century national consciousness was promoted and a sense of unity produced, brought in a sense of 'Indianness'.

Parliamentary procedure in India and the rule of law in Indian government is an English legacy.

The civil servants had been trained to shoulder responsibility, not to shirk it. Traditions of paternal administration may still prove a valuable British legacy in India. Outside these fields the British have left many legacies: (a) in the industrial, commercial, educational, social and political fields, (b) in trade unionism, (c) in the educational system.

A very interesting legacy is India's discovery of her self, her ancient past.]

The ring bears a detachable seal in the form of a half expanded lotus within which is carved the emblem of Gajalakṣhmī, with Rājā Śrīmad-Ratnadēvaḥ, engraved below it.

The characters are in Nāgarī. The language of the inscription is Saṅṣkṛit. The record is dated in the Kalchuri Saṃvat year 885, corresponding to 24th September 1131 A.C. The object is to register the royal grant of the village—called Vōḍalā, in Kōsala, to a Brāhmaṇa named Padmanābha, belonging to the Bhārgava Gōtra, son of Hariśarmā.]

2078. Kadmāl Plates of Guhila Vijayasimha, V.S. 114. EI. XXXI(5 & 6). 1957. 237-248 : pl.

[These plates were first noticed by Pandit G. H. Ojha in his Rājputānēkā Itihās, Fasc. I, pp. 445-46. He traced the plates which were lying hidden with a Brāhmaṇa family of the village of Kadmāl, some 25 miles to the north-west of Udaipur.

This is a set of two copper plates which are said to constitute the earliest metal record of the ruling dynasty of Udaipur.

Language of the inscription is Sanskrit.

The document begins with praise of Srī-Ēkaliṅga, the guardian deity of the ruling dynasty of Udaipur.

Then follows the genealogical portion which covers verses 2-9. The prose portion of the record (line 12 to line 38) is devoted to the description of its object which is to record the donation of the fifth part of the produce of the village of Pallī, embracing all its receipts, to Ūṇalāchārya, son of the most respectable āchārya Sāhīya who was a resident of Nāgahrada but whose son had since migrated elsewhere, probably to Pallī, then comprised within the domain of Mewār. He belonged to the Mādhyandina school and the Vatsa gōtra. The donee was given full right over the fifth part of every item of produce of the donated village to the extent of its boundaries, with the exception of the income of—taxes and drainage in which he received only half (i.e., one-tenth part), the other half going to the donor himself (lines 26-32).

Donor was Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Paramēśvara Maṇḍalīka (line 13) Vijayasiṃha, the last prince on the genealogical list. The gift was made at and the grant issued from Nāgahrada, i.e., Nāgdā, his capital city, near the present town of Ekliṅgjī.

The scribe was Nāgapāla, son of Paṇḍita Uhila, belonging to the Pañchakulika (modern Pañchōlī). The messenger through whom the royal order for the execution of the character had been conveyed to the concerned authority, was Raṇadhavala, son of Sagaṃdā, who was a Chāhamāna Rājaputra.]
